

MORNING APPEAL.

Tuesday.....February 1 1887.

THEY MUST SHOW THEIR HANDS.

The APPEAL has it from reliable sources that John Mackay has made the offer to the Government that if they wish to run the Carson Mint he will furnish the institution with 450,000 ounces of silver a month which represents in the neighborhood of half a million dollars. This offer has been referred to the Director of the Mint who has referred it to the Secretary of the Treasury. This matter is just now in statu quo and the Democratic Administration is deliberating how to meet this proposition. The Administration has alleged that its reason for closing the Mint was that the amount of silver produced in Nevada was not sufficient to keep the Mint in this city running, and now that such an offer has been made, and it is well known that Mr. Mackay would not make it unless he was able to deliver the silver, the Democratic Administration is at a loss to know exactly what to do. If it refuses the offer it will be an acknowledgment that its reasons for closing down the Mint are other than the alleged insufficiency of silver in Nevada. A refusal to open the Mint under these circumstances will show clearly that the Administration is working in the interests of Wall Street in its war on the silver interests of the West.

It is also claimed that the sudden discovery of a bonanza on the Comstock was the result of concerted action among the silver men. The location of the bonanza was known over three years ago but from business reasons best known to themselves the firm did not develop the find, until Mackay concluded to open up the levels of Con. Virginia and use the discovery as a lever to put under the gold-bugs of the East. Senator Jones also agreed to send his Gold Hill bullion and Joe Douglas will send $10,000 a month from his Dayton mill. Other leading men of the State have agreed to contribute to the quota and give the Mint all the silver it needs. The silver which is now in sight in the Con. Virginia, together with the low grade ore, it is said will run the Mint for ten years.

FOREIGN PEDDLERS.

Senator Jones' Opinion on Reducing the Tariff.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Senator Jones, of Nevada, is of the opinion that there will be an extra session of Congress. He says he has no information on which to base this belief, except his personal conviction that the President will not be insensible to the party benefits that an extra session might confer. "I am opposed to a reduction of the Customs duties," said the Senator, "but there is a demand on the part of a majority of the Democrats to be relieved from what they call war tax. I regard the tariff as a sort of license that producers in foreign countries pay for the privilege of selling their wares in this country. They bear none of the burdens of our Government, owe it no allegiance, are not required to assist in its defense in time of peril; and, dwelling in their squalid homes abroad, pay so much duty for the privilege of selling the product of their cheap labor to the people of the United States. Mr. Morrison thinks they pay too much. I, for one of the Republican party, do not think they pay enough. The vast majority of Democrats agree with Morrison and Carlisle. Cleveland has directed the attention of Congress to the necessity for a reduction of the surplus revenues, and the House has paid no attention to his request. If he wishes to convince the country of his sincerity in this emergency he has only to convene Congress in extra session, when the sentiment of the people on this question can be legislatively expressed, and whatever may be the result the Democratic party cannot be arraigned in the next campaign on the charge of having violated their pledges.

—Gould has just paid over a million and a half for an Arkansas railroad. We like railroads ourselves but it would be a smooth talker who could induce us to give such a price as that for a road in Arkansas.

—Kirkaly's ballet girls all went to church Sunday in New York. They selected the Methodist Episcopal church. The scene painter was unable to attend as he was busy on an "interior of hell" scene that had to be ready the next evening. It is but fair to the ladies to say that their pretty legs were decorously hidden under regulation dresses and they listened to the sermon with profound attention.
